

Debased Coinage, Invitation To Counterfeiting? Intrinsic Value Coinage Important To Public

NO-one can profitably counterfeit U.S. silver coinage! Till now this maxim has defied any challenge. Not so, if coinage is debased, says the Silver Producers Committee of the American Mining Congress. A debased coinage would be an open invitation to counterfeiting. The intrinsic cost and value of silver coins make it unprofitable to counterfeit silver U.S. currency. If used, copper nickel alloys would have but a fraction of the silver value in U.S. coins, and would make it exceedingly profitable to counterfeit quarters and halves particularly.

Commented American Metal Market recently: "The distinctive 'ping' and heft of silver makes the counterfeiting risk too great for the necessary investment in equipment and raw material. This is small solace to the Secret Service, which now has its hands full keeping ahead of increasingly skilled paper money counterfeiters intimate with amazing new developments in photo-engraving. There have been similar developments in metal working.

"Many a transit system has discovered this to its horror when the community was flooded with tokens almost indistinguishable from the real thing."

Foreign Attitudes

"Significantly, according to the silver producers, there is a world trend toward resumption of silver coinage by countries that once abandoned it. These include Italy, Germany, Austria and France. It may be prophetic that those were precisely the countries in Western Europe that had gone through the most drastic experiences in the devaluation of currency. Their governments recognized that coinage of intrinsic value creates public confidence, even if the intrinsic value is only a fraction of the face value. But the United Kingdom is not going back to silver coins."

Public Sentiment

"Silver mine producers and refiners contend that the roots of a currency that has real, rather than token, value are deep in our national subconscious" according to American Metal Market. Our colleagues seriously attempted to substantiate this theory by selected examples of United States history from the Revolution to the Civil War and nearly succeeded in sounding convincing.

Unfortunately, it should be stressed that even among the better informed citizens on matters of coinage and intrinsic value — coin collectors—the sentiment is not generally strong in favor of retaining full silver content. Latest estimates place the number of coin collectors in the United States at 12,000,000.

Feelings about intrinsic value of coins change considerably with geographical location, however; but the reasons, again, can be attributed to historical atavism. Stated American Metal Market in this respect: "The feeling for money of intrinsic value moved westward as the frontiers opened up. Without question it was solidified during the Administration of Andrew Jackson when banks and commercial establishments, during a financial crisis, flooded the country with an amount of paper small change far exceeding the amount of currency in circulation. These were formally known as 'Jackson tokens,' although more popularly called 'shinplasters' — an Americanism still widely applied to money of little value.

"The distrust of 'shinplasters' became firmly imbedded in the Far West following the great gold and silver discoveries that began at Sutter's Creek in 1848. In the absence of coins, gold and silver as dust or nuggets were the preferred medium of exchange, observes the Silver Committee. The Western states and territories leaped into the breach with issues of their own. In 1854 the U.S. Mint decided to regularize the situation by opening a branch in San Francisco to handle the huge output of the new mines. There are those who contend that its coinage won the Civil War by providing money with which to pay Union troops (although even the staunchest advocates of that theory find it hard to disagree that Gen. Grant helped.)

"That the tradition of 'real money' is still strong in the Far West was driven home during Senate Banking and Currency Committee hearings in April, 1964, on the question of minting additional silver dollars — now scarce because of collecting and hoarding."

Vending Machine Operators

Recently Mr. Thomas B. Hungerford, executive director of the National Automatic Merchandising Association set forth the viewpoint of the vending machine operators when he stated: "Because our machines are selling merchandise of a given value, we must be sure that they accept only legitimate U.S. coins.

"To do this every vending machine, with the exception of penny machines and those that dispense bulk merchandise, is equipped with a device known as a slug rejector. This small but complicated unit puts each nickel, dime, and quarter through a number of tests. It accepts U.S. coins and rejects slugs and foreign coins . . .

"While I will have to leave a description of the technical aspects of slug rejectors to other witnesses, I can state that the reduction of the silver content in silver coins as proposed in Senator Metcalf's bill — that is, a change from 900 silver and 100 copper to 800 silver and 200 copper — will not affect the operation of the 3,280,000 slug rejectors now in use in vending machines throughout the country.

"But if silver should be eliminated entirely from our coinage, and alloys with different characteristics than those of present coins are substituted, such a change could wreak havoc not only in the automatic vending industry, but in all industries using coin detection devices.

"Present machines would reject such new coins in the same way as slugs. Only the old coinage would be accepted. This would virtually put vending machines and other coin-operated devices out of business because of the uncertainty and confusion on the part of the purchasing public.

Irritable Consumers

"This would confuse and irritate millions of consumers who simply wouldn't understand why their good money suddenly is rejected by the machine and will not deliver merchandise as it did before."

The viewpoint of the coin mechanism manufacturers was very ably presented by Mr. Fred E. Wallin, vice president of National Rejectors, Inc.: "Our recommendations at this time are that if a change in the alloy of U. S. silver coins becomes necessary, a substitute alloy of 500 parts silver and 500 parts copper should be used. We know now that coins made from such an alloy will be accepted satisfactorily by the coin-testing devices in the coin-operated machines in the U.S."

Four interests, four different viewpoints, but all point in one direction: there is no easy solution in sight for the silver problem. Reconciliation of all interests involved will prove to be an impossible task; for whatever decision is made, it should serve the broadest spectrum of interests but above all consider only the public interest.

Wood's Rosa Americana And Hibernia Coinage

A Tale Of Three Countries...

By: Christian F. Verbeke

WOOD'S coinage occupies a place of honor in the gallery of Numismatica Americana. While the Rosa Americana issues were issued specifically for the Colonies, it was a most bizarre set of circumstances which led the Hibernia issue from Bristol to America via Dublin. To none other than Jonathan Swift, the controversial Dean of St. Patrick's, are American coin collectors indebted for the presence of Wood's Hibernia coinage in the United States.

The situation preludes in Ireland during the latter part of Queen Anne's reign. A serious minor coinage shortage had developed in Ireland since 1700. Under William III's reign all copper coinage for Ireland ceased in 1696. No copper farthings or half pence were minted during Queen Anne's reign, excepted a few patterns for England, subject of much controversy.

Under George I, coronated in 1714, the Irish coin shortage was taking on disastrous proportions. The laboring classes were obliged to accept wages in form of tokens and store cards. The notorious abuses of the system were cause of considerable popular unrest in Ireland. In retrospect, however, it appears that many of the abuses were tacitly approved by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, Carteret.

Unscrupulous merchants and employers, or both in collusion, would issue counterfeits to their employees, this enabled the merchants to refuse the forged tokens and cards when presented in payment. The system, even when practiced legitimately, was still a form of petty tyranny and exploitation because it forced the wage earner to spend his money in establishments designated by his employers.

The wretched scheme against which the Irish people revolted more than two centuries ago was still actively practiced in the United States till the late twenties. The history of American mining abounds with accounts of such abuses, practiced by owners or corporations. Workers who revolted against the ignominious practices were labeled Anarchists, black listed, if not eliminated by a convenient shotgun blast.

By 1722 the situation had become untenable in Ireland as the coin shortage risked to wreck the entire economy.

A royal patent was granted to William Wood in 1722 to enable him to coin farthings and halfpence for Ireland to the value £ 108,000. Wood, often referred to as a respected hardware manufacturer, was primarily a proprietor and renter of iron and copper mines; copper coinage would give him additional outlets for the metal.

To obtain the Royal patent, Wood had to bribe the Duchess of Kendal, the King's mistress. Well aware of this situation, Minister Walpole, recalled after the South Sea Bubble panic, took every precaution to avoid that the Irish coinage would become an opportunity for fraud or excessive gain. The terms of the contract were approved by Isaac Newton, then Master of the London Mint; before entering in circulation, the new coins were tested for weight and fineness by the officers of the Mint, and thus in 1722 the copper coinage began in Bristol.

Everything appeared most propitious except for the fact that the Irish copper coinage was lighter in weight than its English counterpart. This weight discrepancy was due to the premium which English currency commanded over Irish currency.

The Irish parliament passed a resolution however, stating that the terms of the patent would cause a 150 percent loss to the nation.

The Irish parliament's reasoning, while mathematically exact, was proven to be economically unfounded. The Irish assumption was based on the fact that rough Irish copper was worth twelvepence a pound, whereas a pound of fine copper could be monetized at thirty pence face value, coined either in farthings or halfpence. The London Mint, however, paid eighteen pence per pound of prepared copper, the coinage charge was fourpence per pound, while Irish charges and import duties amounted to another 20 percent, thus raising total cost to 26½ pence. Wood's profit in fact was a mere pittance since in addition to the enumerated items he paid the Royal Mint £ 200 for supervision and £ 800 for the King's seignorage annually, had the contract run its course. The bribe to the Duchess of Kendal is believed to have been £ 10,000.

A Committee of the English Privy Council investigated the Irish Parliament's allegations and in its findings exonerated Wood. The size of the Irish copper issue was reduced to £ 40,000, however. Legal tender provisions were limited to a total sum of fivepence halfpenny in a single payment.

At this stage, the matter could have been considered settled in the best interest of all parties concerned, had it not been for Jonathan Swift's intervention.

In 1724, a letter was published by one M. B. Drapier, a pseudonym for Swift, addressed to the people of Ireland "concerning the brass halfpence coined by one William Wood, hardwareman." The letter submitted that Wood's Irish coinage was made of such base metal that a shilling face value of it was barely worth one penny intrinsically. The letter added that the initial issue of £ 108,000 would be worth but eight or nine thousand pounds real value.

The furor unleashed in Ireland by Swift's letter was immense. Carteret, the Lord Lieutenant, ordered the printer prosecuted and offered £300 award for information leading to the discovery of DRAPIER'S author.

An Irish grand jury acquitted the printer and ridiculed the Crown by issuing a brief submitting that Wood's coinage was indeed fraudulent and contrary to the best interests of Ireland and his Majesty. Walpole restored Ireland to order and peace by cancelling Wood's patent. The damage was already done, however, and it is asserted that no other single event more clearly initiated Ireland's independence of the Crown.

By slander and misrepresentation Swift defeated George I's cause in Ireland, and in the process inflicted a major affront to the Whigs, his former benefactors.

The Wood's halfpence affair was not all a loss, however; a good number of Hibernia coins were sent to the Colonies of North America.

The copper tokens issued specifically for the American Colonies, "Rosa Americana" were dated 1722, 1723, and 1724 for general circulation. Patterns of the 1733 issue are known and were issued by the successors to the original Wood's patent.

Ironically enough, the legend on Rosa Americana reads "UTILE DULCE" — the useful with the pleasant. Unlike the Hibernia copper issue, Rosa Americana was struck in Bath metal, a copper-zinc alloy invented by Wood and of questionable intrinsic value.

What the coin lacked in value, however, was largely made up by the beauty of its design, consisting of a full-sized rose on the reverse and an allegorical George I effigy on the obverse.

How well the Rosa Americana issue was received in America is a matter of widely divergent opinions amidst historians. At any rate, even if the issue was disliked as it has often been suggested, it did not suffer the indignities Hibernia was subjected to in Ireland.

The great influx of Hibernia coinage in the Colonies accounts for its availability to coin collectors today. Rosa Americana issues are understandably scarcer. The following issues make up Wood's coinage:

and foreigners from now on, because the heavy, silver peso (8 cents) apparently is being withdrawn from circulation.

For the first time in more than a year, the paper one-peso note is back in general use. Most seem to be pleased. No one needs any longer to go around with pockets bulging with one-peso coins which often quickly tore holes in clothing.

The paper peso was pulled out of circulation reportedly because its printing cost more than its 8 cents value — and Mexico had plenty of silver to put into coinage.

Possibly, the production of peso paper notes doesn't cost so much anymore. Anyhow, they are appearing everywhere.

As for the silver peso, banking quarters reported collectors abroad had been hoarding them or selling them for industrial uses at a figure much higher than the prescribed 8 cents value. Bankers explained that at times the silver content in the peso coin, even though blended with some copper, actually by weight was worth pretty close to U. S. $1.

This Is The American Numismatic Society

Venerable Institution Incorporated A Century Ago

By: Christian F. Verbeke

UNDER the influx of modern numismatic developments, often of questionable merits, one tends to overlook the outstanding role played for more than a century by the American Numismatic Society.

It is unquestionable that the United States owes its present position in world numismatics to the untiring efforts made by the Society and its contributors.

To a certain extent the Society has remained exclusive, although its doors are open to anyone with a sincere interest in numismatics. The American Numismatic Society has, however, grown, performed and succeeded without any recourse to even the slightest form of mercantilism and for this it is to be commended.

While the American Numismatic Society recognizes an area of study which could be considered the economics of numismatics, it has never yielded to the modern tendencies advocating numismatics performing economic functions; nor has it ever endorsed or considered numismatics exploited for speculative or so-called investment motives.

On the occasion of the incorporation centennial PACE wishes to congratulate the American Numismatic Society for its lasting contributions to the Arts and Sciences.

A brief review of the history, organization and activities of the Society follows: (text courtesy American Numismatic Society).

AIMS

The American Numismatic Society is devoted to the advancement of numismatic knowledge, especially as it relates to history, art, archaeology, and economics. Toward this end, it not only engages in the collection of coins, medals, tokens, decorations, and paper money, but also maintains a library covering all phases of the field. In addition to research initiated and carried on by its staff, the Society encourages and assists its members and others in their numismatic studies.

EARLY HISTORY

Twelve enthusiastic New Yorkers met on April 16, 1858, to organize a society devoted to numismatics which they named "The American Numismatic Society." In the constitution they adopted, the Society's object was stated as "the collection and preservation of coins and medals, with an investigation into their history, and other subjects connected with the simple beginning of our Society whose museum and publications are widely known today, both in the United States and abroad.

In 1864, the Society was incorporated under the laws of the State of New York as "The Numismatic and Archaeological Society." At the same time a seal was adopted, a three-leaf oak twig with acorns and the motto "Parva ne pereant" (let not small things perish). Throughout the years the Society has held true to the ideal implicit in this seal.

Coins, medals, and books were collected from the Society's first days. As the collections grew, it became necessary to find quarters to house them. A succession of rented rooms served as meeting-places and headquarters during the first fifty years. Through the generosity of interested officers and members, the Society was enabled to erect its own building in 1907. In this same year the Society's name was changed to the original one, "The American Numismatic Society." Since the construction of the Society's building, its collections and activities have grown progressively.

MUSEUM

The Society's museum is unique in being the only museum in the world devoted entirely to numismatics. Elsewhere coins and medals are housed as a department of an institution or less specialized purpose, such as an art or historical museum or national library. The Society's building of solid concrete was erected as its permanent home in 1907. A limestone-faced addition made in 1929 doubled its size. It is one of a group of buildings facing Audubon Terrace, a court that opens on Broadway between 155th and 156th Streets. The other buildings are those of the American Geographical Society of New York, the Museum of the American Indian (Heye Foundation), the Hispanic Society of America, and the American Academy of Arts and Letters. The Society's Museum is the third building on the left-hand side when approached from Broadway. It may be conveniently reached from the 157th Street station of the Broadway (I.R.T.) Subway; the 155th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue subway station of the Eighth Avenue (Independent) Subway; or by Fifth Avenue buses No. 4 or 5 which pass the front of the court.

The frieze of the original building bears the name of the Society. On that of the addition there are names of famous numismatists of the past: Eckhel (Greek and Roman Coins), Head (Greek Coins), Heiss (Spanish Coins), Lelewel (Mediaeval Coins), Frahen (Islamic Coins), and Crosby (Early American Coins).

Two stories of the building appear above the level of the terrace. On the ground floor there are two exhibition halls. Two stone tablets on the walls of the foyer giving entrance to the exhibition rooms are inscribed with the names of the Society's Benefactors. In the exhibition halls a comprehensive selection of the coinages of the world, medals, and decorations is displayed. The exhibition is open to the public from 10 to 5 PM daily excepting Sundays and Mondays and holidays. The main floor also provides quarters for the ancient Greek and Roman and the Far Eastern coin departments.

On the second floor are the Oriental, Mediaeval, and Modern coin departments; the Library; and the offices of the Secretary and Editor. The basement and subbasement provides space for business offices, storage, and the photographic department.

COLLECTIONS

The Society's collection is large and representative. All fields are covered, but particularly important are the coins of ancient Greece and Rome, the Far Eastern series, and the Muhammedan issues. The mediaeval, modern and American groups are also distinguished.

By far the greater portion of the collection has been received through bequests and gifts both of collections and of single specimens. A relatively small proportion has been acquired by purchase.

The collection's great strength in the ancient Greek, Roman and Byzantine periods lies in the great collection bequeathed by Edward T. Newell, the Society's President from 1916 until his death in 1941. Mr. Newell's collection, long known throughout the numismatic world for its quality, is especially rich in those series to which his scholarly publications were devoted — the coinages of Alexander the Great and his successors. Altogether his collection numbers over 87,000 pieces. The collection of ancient coins has been enriched also by the F. Munroe Endicott collection of Greek and Roman coins, the Richard Hoe Lawrence collection of Roman coins, the W. Gedney Beatty collection of Greek coins, the Hrold W. Bell collection of Byzantine coins, the Gautier collection of Greek coins presented by an anonymous donor, and by many other gifts of whole groups or single coins.

The coinage of the Far East is likewise well represented in the Society's cabinets. The Chinese coins alone number over 18,000 and constitute one of the largest collections of its kind in the world. The Far Eastern section derives its great strength from a large private collection, that of John Reilly, Jr., one-time Treasurer of the Society, which was presented to the Society by his daughter. The collections of two famous numismatists, Henry A. Ramsden and Neil Gordon Munro, form important sections of the Reilly collection.

In the field of Islamic numismatics, the collection ranks among the leading in the world. Its growth from small beginnings began in 1917 with the gift by Edward T. Newell of both his own collection of over 5,000 Muhammedan coins and that of Howland Wood of 6,000 odd specimens. The Durkee, A. F. R. Hoernle, W. H. Valentine, Longworth Dames, among other collections have provided additions especially in the series for India. An important adjunct to this section is a remarkable collection of Arabic glass weights built on a nucleus bequeathed the Society by James B. Nies and expanded by gifts from Edward T. Newell and Louis H. Schroeder. With its extensive coverage of the entire Near and Middle Eastern world, this section of the Society's cabinet contains much material for study and publication. Among the coins of the many dynasties in its trays there are some whose inscriptions add to historical record the name of a mint or ruler otherwise unknown.

Coinages of the lands of America's forefathers have representative selections, strong in some sections, weaker in others. Thanks to gifts from J. Sanford Saltus and the bequest of Herbert E. Ives, there are important pieces in the English series. The mediaeval and later periods of Italy are well represented through the Herbert Scoville collection of over 3,600 coins and the collection of Florentine florins and Venetian ducats bequeathed by Herbert E. Ives. Poland and its history are well illustrated by the Alexandre Orłowski collection of over 2,000 specimens. Generally speaking, the collection of European coins is good without providing the means for detailed study in all of its facets. Early Latin American coinages from Mexico and Peru are strong through gifts from Wayte Raymond, as are the cut and counter-stamped pieces of the West Indies from the Julius Gutttag collection.

Modern coinage struck in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries is well represented through the gift of Wayte Raymond of the specimens gathered in preparation of his Standard Catalogues of contemporary coins.

The coinage of our country, the United States of America, naturally forms an important section of the Society's cabinet. Notable sections have come from the J. Pierpont Morgan, William B. Osgood Field, and Elliott Smith collections. The Society possesses such treasures as one of the four known specimens of the Confederate Half Dollar, a gift of J. Sanford Saltus, and press used by Augustus Bechtler in striking private gold coins in North Carolina, given by Julius Gutttag. One of the richest series is that of the United States copper cents struck between 1793 to 1857, the collection gathered by George H. Clapp and given by him to the Society. The colonial issues of

MacARTHUR SET

With the recent passing of General MacArthur, already there are plans to strike commemorative medals in his honor. The Philippine government was way ahead of us, in 1947 as a tribute to their liberator, two commemorative coins (peso and half peso) bearing his portrait were struck at the U.S. Mint in San Francisco.

The coins bear the date 1947 with the S-Mint mark below the date. Only 100,000 pieces of the one peso were struck and 200,000 of the half peso pieces were struck. We consider them to be greatly under-priced in relation to the small quantities minted. This coin should definitely be a part of every foreign coin collection, and we expect the day to come when they will be listed in the Guidebook of U.S. Coins along with other Philippine issues. The 1947-S Peso and Half Peso MacArthur coins belong in every U.S. collection as a tribute to a great American General. It is our belief that these coins will not be too plentiful in the very near future.

Bowers on World Coins

Q. David Bowers

THE interest in foreign coins continues its inexorable move forward. New investors, collectors and dealers by the hundreds if not by the thousands are looking and searching . . . not only for specific coins but for new fields. Two years ago the term "Waitangi" would have been virtually meaningless to most dealers, especially if they did not handle foreign coins. Today anyone watching the Teletype systems or anyone in the swing of things market-wise knows that Waitangi is the familiar name of the 1935 New Zealand Commemorative of which only 364 were minted in proof condition . . . one of the hottest numismatic properties on today's market with complete 1935 Waitangi proof sets being bid up well into the low 4 figure mark.

There has been a spurt of interest in Ghana coins of 1958. One European dealer is offering to pay $8.00 each for single crowns and $30.00 for 1958 proof sets . . . but without much success.

One tip which might be worth watching is to learn about the series of Queen Elizabeth. During the next year or so most British Commonwealth countries as well as England itself will change the present design and portrait of Queen Elizabeth to a modified and older effigy. This will isolate the 1953-1964 (or whenever the design is terminated) issues as the "Young Head" issues. Many dealers expect that coins falling within the young head type will take on added popularity. Among proof sets we include the issues of Australia; the 1953 New Zealand; the 1953 English Coronation proof set and the issues of Canada.

Coinage of the long awaited 1964 Bermuda crown has been postponed until December 1964 or early January 1965. This has been upsetting to more than just a few dealers who promised delivery in October! The final mintage figure has been estimated at 500,000 regular issues plus 15,000 proofs and the crowns will be issued for face value ($.70 U. S. funds) by Bermuda banks. It is already expected that this distribution will be on a limited basis of 1 to 2 coins per customer. Even so, few believe that supplies will last very long. The new crown will be smaller than the previous Bermuda crown, the well known 1959 issue. The 1964 dated coin will be approximately the size of an English double florin (a denomination minted from 1887 through 1890). Striking the coin double florin size rather than regular crown size will permit the coin to be struck in fine silver without having the intrinsic value exceed the face value.

In 1959 100,000 crowns were issued commemorating the 350th anniversary of the founding of Bermuda. These were mainly distributed to tourists visiting Bermuda . . . and the entire supply was exhausted in a short time. Today specimens bring $15.00 to $20.00 each when you can find them . . . usually in groups of no more than 2 or 3 at a time.

Institution

Massachusetts are present with specimens from the Field collection, and the state coinages before the adoption of the constitution are well represented.

Tokens, helpmates to coinages in times of stress, offer interesting sidelights to the history of periods of monetary crisis. The richest series of tokens in the collection are those of the "Hard Times" period in our own country, 1837-41, and the merchants' tokens of the Civil War period of the 1860's.

Although weak in medals of the Renaissance, the age in which medallic art was born, the collection has strength in later periods of its development. English medals from the period of Elizabeth from the Daniel Parish, Jr., Collection, Indian Peace Medals from the Stephen H. P. Pell Collection, Admiral Vernon Medals from the L. McCormick-Goodhart Collection, along with a good selection of medals designed by contemporary American and European sculptors, provide a record of the progress of medallic art. Of special interest as a development in modern medallic art, is the complete series of porcelain medals made at the Meissen porcelain works since the First World War, a gift from Louis H. Schroeder.

Decorations of orders of knighthood and of governments for military or civil merit from a special section of the collection. It is one of the most comprehensive such collections in the world. It was built on a nucleus given by J. Sanford Saltus and expanded by repeated gifts from Harold E. Gillingham and others.

Paper money, which in the present century is more and more encroaching on coins as a medium of currency, is also present in the collection. The "obsolete" bank notes of the "wildcat" bank era of our own country, "continentals" of revolutionary times, are supplemented with selections of foreign paper currencies and such special series as prisoner of war money, occupation currency, etc. Like other fields, this section has benefitted from donations, like that of 4,431 specimens of paper currency made by Archer M. Huntington in 1914.

Cashdan's Coin Comments

Eliot J. Cashdan

LAST week was the first week we missed getting our column in in a long time, but we have a legitimate excuse — we were out of the country on business. As a matter of fact we might as well tell you about the coin situation in Mexico City as that is where we were. Any of you that collect Mexican coins will be interested to know that you can buy Mexican coins cheaper in the United States than you can in Mexico.

It is really a very funny situation, and one would think that the coins should certainly be cheaper in Mexico, but it seems that when Mexican coins first got 'hot' in the United States about three years ago, many U. S. dealers and collectors made many trips down in to Mexico and bought up tremendous quantities of all types of Mexican coins, especially the key dates. This actually created a shortage in Mexico and an oversupply in our country, and the result is that you can actually find more of the scarcer Mexican material here now than you can find in Mexico.

Another strange thing that we noticed was that many shops that cater to tourists were offering uncirculated sets of 1964 Mexican coins which consist of the one peso, and the 50, 25, 20, 5, and 1 centavo coins. Being that at the current rate of exchange you get 12.49 pesos for one dollar, a peso is worth about eight cents, and the uncirculated mint set has a fraction more than 16c face value. These sets were in cardboard holders and the cheapest we saw them offered at was $1.25 in U. S. currency. Some of the shops were asking as much as $2.00 for the sets.

This year there are two new coins in Mexico, the 50 and 25 centavo pieces which are made out of what appears to be some sort of base metal, not bronze as the previous coins always were. The one centavo pieces are practically non-existent, as one centavo does not buy anything anymore and the coins appear to cost more to produce in labor and material than the face value of them. We tried at several banks to obtain some one centavo pieces, and finally we were able to get a few uncirculated pieces, but they acted like we had a lot of nerve even asking for them.

There seems to be a plentiful supply of the other denominations, but there is a law in Mexico now which forbids the export of coins except for numismatic purposes, and limits the number of coins for numismatic purposes to 30 pieces of each denomination.

As a matter of fact it is actually necessary to get a permit to bring out the 30 pieces of each denomination, but very few people do this. Most of the banks that we visited also tried to sell us Mexican gold coins, but of course it is useless to buy these as it is against the Mexican laws to take gold out of the country and it is against the U. S. laws to bring gold into this country without a special permit which is almost impossible to obtain. An interesting thing though is that the various banks charge various prices for the gold coins. One would think that there was a standard price on a 50 peso Mexican gold coin, but they were quoted to us at from 600 to 650 pesos at the various banks that offered to sell them to us when we were inquiring about other coins.

Now getting back to the U. S. we find that it is still a buyers market as far as most coins are concerned. Of course there are certain items that are very much in demand and are going up in price daily, but the general picture is still very much in favor of the man who wishes to buy today, and the man who wishes to sell is feeling pretty sick if he is looking for a quick sale. Proof sets seem to be on the move again, but we think that this is just a seasonal price increase rather than a general trend. Many collectors like to give proof sets for Christmas to their collector friends and to people who do not collect coins to get them interested.

It is hard to predict just what proof sets will do after the Holiday season is over. By that time all of the 1964 sets should be delivered and it will be interesting to see if the price stabilizes at any certain level or whether the 1964's will continue to change with the wind. It seems that the price of the 1964 proof set helps determine the prices of the other late date sets as we have noticed that all of the sets from 1954 up seem to rise or fall in relation to the current price of the 1964 set.

When you think of it this is pretty ridiculous, but that seems to be the way certain segments of the coin business are. There does not seem to be any valid reasons for many of the prices on many coins, but the coins seem to maintain the prices regardless.

VERY RARE OFFERING 1964 AUSTRIAN PROOF SET-NEWLY ANNOUNCED ERROR.

The Mint error, an inadvertent "mixing" of correct obverse with incorrect reverse dies on the 1964 Grillparzer commemorative, may be the most important Mint mistake to emanate from post-World War II Europe.

The 1964 Grillparzer error occurred when a die used for the 1963 Prince Eugene of Savoy 25 schilling commemorative inadvertently was used in place of the regular Grillparzer reverse.

The Answer To Low Cost Coin Collecting

ASTEL, G. B. — Just picking up money as he walked about the fields near his home at Astel in the Cotswold hills has brought Bob Arnold one of the largest collections of Roman coins in Britain — relics of the occupation of hundreds of years ago. The fact that the coins range over some 450 years with no gap of more than twenty years in the sequence indicates that Astel must have been an extensive settlement.

Talking to Barney Bamford in the BBC General Overseas Service programme 'Here and Now', Arnold said that he had found his first coin by waiting until one of the village fields had been ploughed and then walking over it. He had found as many as fifteen in one afternoon. One of the most interesting coins in his collection is of Julius Caesar, who first invaded Britain in 55 B.C. and again a year later, and was the first Roman ruler to have his portrait on a coin during his lifetime.

It includes coins of the Emperor Claudius, who sent forces in 43 A.D. (nearly a hundred years after Julius Caesar landed) to embark on the real conquest of Britain. The coin bears the first reference to Britain. There are several coins of the Emperor Nero, and no fewer than 280 specimens of the reign of Hadrian, who built the wall between England and Scotland, which can still be traced today.

There are several specimens of the 'tribute penny' the standard silver coin of the Emperor Tiberias, thought to be the coin which was handed to Jesus Christ when the Pharisees sought to trap Him with the question "Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar or not?" And He answered "Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW!

Regarding the 1964 Pointed and Blunt tail 9 Dimes

The Pointed tail 9 is rare, the Blunt tail 9 is common, this is our opinion from a lengthy detailed research. There are less than 2,000,000 Pointed tail 9 1964-P dimes, with over 300,000,000 Blunt tail 9's with the balance of this year and next year this could mean up to 1,000,000,000 yes, one billion, Blunt tail 9 dimes of 1964-P will be available. When you consider the ratio 2,000,000 and 1,000,000,000 you have a rare item.

The 1964-D Pointed tail 9 isn't as rare but only some 47,000,000 are out in comparison to up to 2,000,000,000, yes two billion Blunt tail 9's. The U.S. Mint is out to flood the market! And they will. But the more they make the more rare the Pointed tail 9 dime will be!

The pattern is the same as the 1960 small date cents. They were struck the early part of the year, thereafter all large dates; so be it hereafter all Blunt tail 9 dimes.

The 1964 Proof sets have the same variety, again the Pointed tail 9 is in a strict minority, only 35,000 similar to the 1960 small date proof set mintage. Over 3,000,000 1964 proof sets will be made, thus 2,965,000 will be of the Blunt type!

We have a limited supply of this promising dime variety.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series.

It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis.

The high and low for 1964 is also shown.

MARKET SUMMARY

NOVEMBER 24, 1964

By Russell Brown

THE roll market had another bad week with the possible exception of Peace dollars. And proof sets seemed to show evidence of an upward trend though the 1964 set weakened considerably.

Trading in the Peace series continues to put in a sporadic appearance on the tapes. This week, while the 1927-S, 1935-S and 1927-D were gaining $20 or more per roll, the Philadelphia issues of 1924, 1928 and 1927 were losing as much as $75 each. Completed transactions are seldom noted and price changes occur each time an issue is put on tape: the price rises if the desire is to buy and visa versa.

Proof sets exhibited their typically thin market in the early dates with several attempts to purchase sets of the late thirties boosting prices $10. And the 1951 and 1952 sets are also in demand with the bid rising accordingly. However, the late date sets with the exception of the 1953 seem to have reached a comfortable level and show no inclination to budge. Efforts were noted to drive the price down on the 1964 set, probably with an eye toward initiating a run on this issue later in December.

Lincoln cents scored 27 declines against six advances with an entire segment of the market from 1946 to 1955 falling away some five to ten per cent. The only bright lights were the 1938-S, 1936-D, 1937-D and the Philly small date each with gains of four dollars or more.

Jefferson nickels are still milling with numerous large price changes caused by small selloffs and occasional purchases. Another war issue was hit as the 1942-P II dropped $20. The 1950-D seems solid at $840 and the rest of the keys show resistance to major declines though all have lost some ground.

Roosevelt dimes couldn't muster a single advance to go with 13 declines which included an eight dollar loss by the 1955-D. All other losses were in the two dollar range or smaller.

The Washington series duplicated the Lincoln performance with a broad segment of issues from 1951 to 1959 weakening and in many cases losing five per cent or more. However, several dates were in demand among which were the 1943-S, up $11 and the 1948-S, up three.

Franklin halves were in decline in a four to one ratio but most of the price changes were minor. There continues to be a large amount of bidding on these issues at lower than market prices and ever so often a seller will weaken and let go a roll or two. The 1955-P, which has resisted change to this date finally gave up three dollars in the series' heaviest trading.

The Morgan dollars continue on everybody's sell list with prices of many of the semi keys falling off week by week. This week was no exception with 26 issues in decline. Five issues lost $25 or more in a doldrum of inactivity. Only two issues could show any substantial gains. The 1898-S rose $25 and the 1897-O picked up $20.

The Canadian market finally cooled off with trading at last week's levels or below. The proof like set market continues to weaken with selling at slightly lower levels.

The Market Opinion

We had hopes last week that the roll market was "rippling" out of its decline and that this week would see some initial advances by the Lincoln cents and possibly the dimes. But such has not been the case. The Lincoln series has apparently determined to seek a lower level and the Jeffersons and Roosevelts are following suit. Quarters and halves are holding more firmly than the minor issues due to their comparative scarcity and silver content.

In discussion with many of the nation's largest dealers, we have found that most of them blame the current low market on the fact investors are somewhat slow to put any more funds in coins when their initial investments, if in cents, nickels or dimes, have not been overly successful. Also with the present highs of the stock markets, much money is going in that direction that might well have come into numismatics.

cially designed display cases and lighting, modern methods of display are used to show and interpret coins and medals. Not only coins and medals themselves are shown, but also photographic enlargements, maps, and other devices are used to tell the story each case is intended to illustrate.

In one hall, the displays tell the story of the development of coins, with their many changes, from their beginning some 2600 years ago until today. The other hall is devoted to medals and decorations of honor. There the displays trace the development of medallic art from its origins in the Renaissance to modern times.

Special exhibitions have been held from time to time. An International Exhibition of Contemporary Medals was held in 1910, followed in 1913 by the Joan of Arc Loan Exhibition of United States and Colonial Coins in 1914. The Bimillennium of Augustus, first emperor of Rome was celebrated in May, 1938. The Early Coins of the Americas exhibition in the spring of 1942 was devoted principally to the early issues struck in Massachusetts, Mexico, and Peru. A special exhibition of the coinages of the ancient, mediaeval and modern East was held in 1948.

LIBRARY

The Society's library is the most comprehensive numismatic library in America and compares well with the long established ones beyond the Atlantic. In recent years few serious numismatic studies have been made in the United States without consultation of its resources. It contains 50,000 items — books, periodicals, pamphlets, auction catalogues and fixed price lists — covering every facet of numismatics. Especially outstanding are its collections of numismatic periodicals and of European and American auction catalogues. There is also unpublished manuscript material from the hands of both American and European scholars in a variety of special interests. In the library's catalogue, periodical articles and pamphlets are analyzed by subject with the same detail as the books. A special card file of illustrations of Greek and Roman coins provides invaluable aid to students of ancient numismatics. In this file there are over 75,000 mounted illustrations clipped from auction catalogues and other sources, with notations in many cases of the coin's weight, pedigree, and price. Other special items are a growing collection of lantern slides and microfilm copies of books and articles difficult to obtain in original form. Through exchange for the Society's publications, the Library receives the current publications of all important foreign numismatic societies and institutions.

The library's facilities are available to the public daily from 9 AM to 5 PM, excepting Sundays, Mondays, and holidays.

PUBLICATIONS

Throughout its life the Society has been active in publishing. It founded the American Journal of Numismatics which it published between 1866 and 1870. After moving into its building in 1907, the Society resumed publication of the Journal, which continued to its fifty-third volume in 1923 when it was suspended. The Journal was the first American numismatic periodical of note. Its pages, particularly from 1907 to 1923, represent the first consistent effort in the United States to present numismatic articles of high scholarly quality.

In 1874, it was decided to issue the Proceedings of the Society in separately printed form. They had formerly been printed in the American Journal of Numismatics. This practice of separate publication has continued with few exceptions until the present day. From 1878 to 1907 the papers which had been read before the Society were published in each volume of the PROCEEDINGS. These papers, often short, contained interesting numismatic data not published elsewhere. Before 1920, various other separate publications were issued, principally in the nature of catalogues of special exhibitions, such as that of the International Medallic Exhibition held in 1910 and the Exhibition of United States and Colonial Coins in 1914.

The present form of the Society's publication activities dates from 1920 when a fund was provided for the Society to publish separate monographs on subjects of scientific value and scholarly interest. Through this fund the series NUMISMATIC NOTES and MONOGRAPHS was established. It is devoted to essays and treatises on coins, medals, paper money, and decorations. Nearly 150 numbers have been published in this series.

A second series, NUMISMATIC STUDIES, was initiated in 1938 to accommodate publications requiring a larger format.

A third series, the HISPANIC NUMISMATIC SERIES, was introduced in 1950 with George C.

Miles' THE COINAGE OF THE Umayyads of Spain.

An occasional publication of the Society which first appeared in 1946 is the AMERICAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY MUSEUM NOTES. This publication consists of brief notes and papers on a wide variety of numismatic topics.

The only publication of the Society which is periodic in appearance is its quarterly, NUMISMATIC LITERATURE, which provides a chronicle of current books, pamphlets and periodical articles with brief resumes of their content. Each issue also lists current periodicals, book reviews in other journals of numismatic books, and coin dealer catalogues. Its wide coverage is made possible by the co-operation of the membership and correspondents abroad.

Many of the Society's publications are distributed to Associate Members on appearance at no additional cost above their annual dues. All publications are distributed to the Fellows.

NUMISMATICS SEMINAR

A new enterprise, unique in the educational field, its Summer Seminar in Numismatics, held for ten weeks from late June through August, was undertaken by the Society in 1952. Since then, it has been repeated annually with great success.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SERVICE

The Society maintains a photographic department which is equipped especially for the photography of numismatic objects. It is in the charge of a full-time photographer, who has been specializing in the photography of coins and medals for reproduction in Society and other publications. Services of the Society's photographic department are available to all members either for the photography of single coins or of entire collections. Details concerning charges for such photographic work will be furnished on application.

MEDAL ISSUES

At various times in the Society's history, it has sponsored the issuance of commemorative medals. Its first medal was issued in 1866 to commemorate Abraham Lincoln. Another was struck in 1883 to commemorate the centennial celebration of the evacuation of New York by the British. Succeeding medals honor two of the Society's Presidents, the Anthon medal in 1884 and the Parish medal in 1890.

The greatest period of activity in the issuance of medals occurred during the years immediately following World War I. Among those issued were the Prince of Wales medal, the Joan of Arc medal, and the Treaty of Peace medal, all in 1919; the Marshal Foch medal, 1921; the Paul Revere Sesquicentennial medal, 1925; and the medal commemorating the tercentenary of the purchase of Manhattan Island, 1926. The latest medals issued by the Society were that commemorating the Society's Centennial in 1958 and that signaling Mr. Louis C. West's presidency of the Society during the years 1949-1959.

AWARDS

Two awards are made by the Society for special achievement. The Archer M. Huntington Medal, named for its President from 1906 to 1916, is awarded for outstanding scholarly contributions to numismatics. The J. Sanford Saltus Medal, established by a fund contributed by Mr. Saltus in 1913, honors sculptors who have achieved merit in the art of the medal.

FUNDS AND SOURCES OF SUPPORT

The Society is a privately endowed organization which receives no financial support from any government agency. Its main income is from an endowment fund which was established in 1905 and to which additions have been made in the intervening years. This endowment fund income is supplemented by dues from members, proceeds from sale of publications, and from the income of special funds placed at its disposal for specific purposes.
